Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 04 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Rain giving way to scattered showers.

This Evening and Tonight:
A wet start to the evening, as widespread rain moves northeast across the region. Clearing shortly after midnight, leaving the rest of the night dry but cloudy with mist patches. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Friday:
The morning will be largely dry and mostly cloudy. However, a band of showers is expected to move in from the west during the afternoon, turning heavy in places. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Saturday cloudy with sporadic showers, possibly snowy on high ground later. Probably drier with some sunshine Sunday. Monday, feeling very cold with snow showers. Risk of ice all three days.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.